Green Brooklyn...Green City is an interactive event where attendees can learn first-hand from local experts about the many ways New York City is creating a more sustainable future.

Alongside our Greenmarket farmers' market, attendees can visit exhibitors, make art from recycled products, and more. The event is the largest of its kind in Brooklyn and we invite you to come learn the simple, small steps you can take to help keep New York City a healthy place to live.

Recycle your old clothes into a sculpture

Visionary artist Derick Melander, alongside a large team of volunteers, will race against the clock to create an enormous, four thousand pound sculpture, all in one day. The sculpture will be made from carefully folded second-hand clothing, arranged by color. If they make their goal, the sculpture will be 5 feet wide and 7 feet tall.

Bring your old clothes and let them be reborn as art! Wearable Collections will collect what's not used.

Visit derickmelander.com for more information on his sculptures or read about his latest installation in the New York Times!

Call for volunteers

Interested in lending a hand? We are looking for volunteers to help with:

- day-of logistics
- on-the-ground marketing the week before the event
- one or two event interns to come into the office for the next few weeks to help with the final phase of planning

Please let us know if you are interested! Email Caitlin Shann at cs hann@cenyc.org for more information or to sign up for a shift!
