

npower connect

a monthly news update

The Community Corps Launches IT Volunteers & Nonprofits welcomed

Nonprofits looking for free IT help can now join The Community Corps (TCC), NPower's newest program that connects skilled corporate IT volunteers with nonprofits who need help with their IT. TCC officially launched this month and stands to automatically connect thousands of nonprofit IT projects with volunteers nationally via an online portal. Need help? Don't wait. Learn more and register your nonprofit at www.thecommunitycorps.org.

TSC Grads Make The Grade Graduation Rates, Placements Soar

The Technology Service Corps graduation rates are growing by double digits, while almost 90 percent of recent alums are continuing their education, working or doing both. TSC now also boasts larger classes, a deeper curriculum and more corporate partners and internships. "Our grads are also finding jobs with both nonprofits and Fortune 500 companies like JPMorgan Chase, Guardian Life, and Whole Foods. It's phenomenal," TSC Director Patrick Cohen reported.

Learn More>

npower IMPACT

Edna ^{THE}McConnell
Clark ^{FOUNDATION}

When The Edna McConnell Clark Foundation (EMCF) needed affordable and reliable desktop and network support it found exactly what it was looking for in NPower's IT Basic service. Now, two years into the program, IT Basic monitors and supports EMCF's server, domain, security and 19 desktops.

"Having confidence that our network is secure and operating efficiently is critical to our foundation's work," said Mark Bankston, EMCF's IT Manager. "NPower gives us all that. Our network uptime is at least 99.9 percent and the service and products are getting better and better."

Learn More>

Powerful Connections Gala

NPower's annual Powerful Connections gala to raise funds to bring affordable IT solutions to nonprofits is set for November 30. The event brings together socially responsible companies to celebrate NPower's mission. This year, it will also officially launch The Community Corps, NPower's new skilled IT volunteer portal. "Our corporate connections are so important to our work. Thankfully, they're growing as our mission becomes more important," NPower CEO Stephanie Cuskley said.

Learn More>

NPower is a national 501(c)(3) organization dedicated to connecting nonprofits to the best and most affordable IT products and services. Headquartered in New York, NPower achieves its mission by engaging corporate IT executives and socially responsible companies to support its services and products. NPower's core programs include: IT Professional Services, Technology Service Corps and The Community Corps.

For more information on NPower, please visit our website:
www.npower.org