

Brooklyn Economic Development Corporation
Windels Marx Lane & Mittendorf, LLP
Brooklyn Public Library

Present a free workshop

Reducing your Property Taxes

Has Your Property Tax Bill Gone Up?

If it has, its not too late to contest your commercial property assessment and potentially save tens of thousands of dollars in property taxes.

The New York City Department of Finance determines the assessed value on commercial property using a complex formula based on the current value of the commercial real estate property, including industrial, retail, office and multi-family/apartment properties. In doing so, they also consider the property's income stream, including its income and expenses for the prior year.

Experienced Certiorari attorneys from Windels Marx Lane & Mittendorf LLP will explain the process of reducing your property taxes.

Date: Wednesday, January 26, 2011

Time: 6:00 PM - 8:00PM

Location: Brooklyn Public Library's Central Library
10 Grand Army Plaza (2nd Floor Meeting Rm)
Brooklyn, New York 11225

SEATING IS LIMITED AND REGISTRATION IS REQUIRED.

Contact: (718) 368-6790 or send an email to: n_sampayo@bedc.org

Brooklyn
Public Library

BEDC, a private, nonprofit, was created in 1979 to stimulate the economy of Brooklyn and create employment opportunities for the city and its residents. BEDC has become a multi-service, business consulting agency, serving more than 1,000 customers annually and provides comprehensive economic development. More information is available at www.bedc.org.

This workshop is provided solely as general information, is not intended to offer legal advice, and prior results communicated during this seminar do not guarantee a similar outcome.